What is Advanced Mission Training?

The answer to the greatest needs in the world today is the people of God, filled with the Spirit of God, declaring the message of the Gospel. Overland Missions is currently seeking those who are willing to go into the nations, regardless of the difficulties or remoteness, to see transformation. If this career opportunity is intriguing, then your next step is AMT, Advanced Mission Training.

AMT is a three-month course designed to spiritually and practically equip believers with the skills necessary to make an eternal and sustainable impact in the nations. The program consists of numerous subjects that are a mixture of classroom learning, taught by veteran missionaries, and practical field exercises.

The course is split into two phases. The first 6 weeks are spent at our flagship International Logistical Base outside of Livingstone, Zambia. The second phase is held at one of our bases around the world.

Expect to live fully immersed in the mission, living in close community with our full-time missionaries. This is a unique and challenging training that will prepare you to handle any road...any load...any time.
